UC San Diego Content Tutoring Program Earns CRLA International Tutor Training Program Certification

The Content Tutoring program at the UC San Diego has been approved for Stage 1, Levels 1 and 2, certification by the College Reading & Learning Association’s (CRLA) International Tutor Training Program Certification (ITTPC). The ITTPC provides recognition and positive reinforcement for tutors' successful work from an international organization, CRLA, and sets an internationally accepted standard of skills and training for tutors.

CRLA's ITTPC has been endorsed by the

- Council of Learning Assistance and Developmental Education Associations (CLADEA)
- National Association for Developmental Education (NADE)
- Commission XVI of the American College Personnel Association
- ATCLA: Association of Colleges for Tutoring and Learning Assistance
- ATP: Association for the Tutoring Profession
- NCLCA: National College Learning Center Association
- NCDE: National Center for Developmental Education

Since CRLA’s International Tutor Training Program launched in March 1989, it has grown to more than 1,100 ITTPC-certified programs worldwide.

Congratulations to the Academic Achievement Hub in the Teaching + Learning Commons for the extraordinary work they did to achieve this important distinction!

To learn more about the content tutoring program at UC San Diego, visit https://aah.ucsd.edu/content-tutoring/index.html or contact the Academic Achievement Hub at aah@ucsd.edu.